Dear Admiral Turner

Most likely the attached concerns a subject about which you have been receiving substantial correspondence. Certainly I am well aware that this falls within the guidelines of the existent system, but I am at a loss to explain this to so many people within my district who are barely able to subsist at even a meagre level.

Thus, any counsel you can share with me will be greatly appreciated.

With my thanks therefor and my regard, I am

Sincerely

K (Kika) de la Garza, M.C.

Dear Lika:

The enclosed clip has concerned me very much. Would you be able to give me the benefit of your views on this matter? - At your convenience, of course, since I do not wish to have a "Dear John"

PUBLIC EXAMPLE

To the Editor:

The credibility of CIA Director Stansfield Turner was just reduced to ashes, not because of his position in government, but because of his greedy conduct.

During his years as an officer of the Navy he never had to worry about his paycheck as do most Americans. Then, as an Admiral he reaped a fat annual salary, plus all kinds of side benefits, also paid for by the taxpayers.

Now, working as CIA director, Stansfield Turner collects several times more than the average American and ought to be satisfied. But he is not!

Long ago, he as part of the bureaucratic establishment learned to have the taxpayers pay - pay - pay.

As a supposedly respected executive government officer he is taking advantage of a "Loop Hole" in the new "double dipping" retirement laws, screwing you and me and all other taxpayers to the tune of an additional $20,000 annually to make his total pay a whopping $77,500.

Thus the director of the CIA is setting a public example on how high government officials act. If some lesser government employee tries to do the same, can we blame them?

Pious and Righteous as President Carter pictures himself in front of Americans, his total effort on fighting inflation has been directed towards sacrifice on the part of the public sector in this country. At the same time he apparently condones what CIA Director Stansfield Turner is doing in adding to unwanted government spending which is the major cause for added taxes, higher cost on consumer goods, hiked OPEC oil prices, falling dollar value, etc., etc., all causing more and more inflation.

Americans, start screaming louder, they still don't believe you in Washington!
